Gentry is a year and half old - "HAPPY" is a simple, yet such classical way to describe Gentry.

He loves to smile for the camera and make shark, actually "JAWS" noises. From the beginning Gentry has been independent, only wanting to sleep in his crib in his room and slept well. Just as he was beginning to move and crawl independently, abruptly we experienced some changes. At 9 months, Gentry was diagnosed with epilepsy.

The unpredictability of this disorder has made the journey a tough one. One minute Gentry can be stepping along the back of the couch and the next minute he is in a full blown seizure. There is no pattern or triggers that we are aware of at this time so our awareness of his is heightened.

It has made for a tough journey.

When a baby is born healthy one never expects to be on the road we are traveling now. Multiple trips to the emergency room and pediatrician. Multiple ambulance rides to the Johnson City Children's Hospital, even one by helicopter. Tests, tests and more tests to determine the best course of action. Medicine and more medicine to trial and error until we find that perfect combination. After multiple hospital stays in the hospital, through the monitors we will always get the precious toothy grin from Gentry.

He is such a social butterfly and has such a love for people. When he smiles he makes the world around him alright again, especially for us - even if a fleeting moment. Gentry knows that he is loved.

We feel your prayers when the days are long and uncertain. Thank you for loving our child and we ask for your continued support through prayer as we embark on more specialists beginning in the weeks ahead.
